

BREATH, LIVE AND EXPERIENCE
INDONESIA'S CULTURE AND
HISTORICAL ARCHITECTURE AT
ALINDRA VILLA, LOCATED IN JIMBARAN
AT THE SOUTH PENINSULA OF BALI.

Alindra Villa is a work of architectural art by the owner, an architect and painter with a love for descriptive antiques and architecture. Each ethnic villa comes from his personal collection of antique wooden Indonesian huts, while within each pool villa is displayed paintings by the owner and his personal antique collections.

Ethnic Compound

ETHNIC I (120 SQM)

Ethnic I is a combination between the traditional Kudus Joglo of Centre Java that owns a unique Soko Guru structure with an original Balinese wantilan beams that surrounds. The wantilan used to watch over many social gatherings in the community space, namely traditional dance, festivities and authentic local ceremonies. It now hangs over the king bed within the villa.

ETHNIC II (175 SQM)

Balinese elements are fused with a traditional Makobang Minahasa house, resulting in this two-storey villa, which exudes warmth and character. Past the open kitchen at the front is the living area reminiscent of a winter cottage that used to watch over the family's workshop. On the upper storey are two cosy bedrooms and a porch that overlooks the pool and gardens of the ethnic compound.

ETHNIC III (105 SQM)

A typical hut from Makobang Minahasa is separated into two bedrooms of Single and Queen bed, an enclosed living area with a daybed, a back porch leading to an open kitchen and dining area and an open front porch overlooking the pool and gardens. Original paintings and wooden carvings add a touch of colour throughout this authentic, traditional house.

ETHNIC IV (125 SQM)

Dating more than a century old, this Balinese community hall of Bualu village, Nusa Dua was rescued from total demolition and transformed into a twin queen bedroom villa. Built in the style of saka roras, literally meaning 'pillars 12', all the original pillars are complementary in keeping the entire building up. An ornate garuda statue keeps watch over the two queen beds, for a peaceful slumber.

ROYAL POOL VILLA (550 SQM)

The Royal Pool Villa owns a spacious living area, a master bedroom with an extra king size bed, private kitchen, and an outdoor Jacuzzi tucked next to the swimming pool and garden. Within the bedrooms, open kitchen and dining area are artistic touches from the owner's collection.

GRAND POOL VILLA (1000 SQM)

Flanking the row of rooms on both sides are a lounge area and open-air terrace that is open to all guests of Alindra Villa.

Named for the deep earthy colour that dominates the compound, on the south wing of the Terracotta building is the Terracotta Suite, a bedroom with an en-suite bathroom and an extra king size bed. Outside the suite is a lounge area, with a full home entertainment system and both open to guests of Alindra Villa, and an open-air terrace.
